Read the text and answer the questions

Most children at the age of six or so are full of the schemes of becoming policemen, firemen or engine drivers when they grow up. When I was that age, I was going to have my own zoo. This did not seem to me a very unreasonable ambition. As the years passed, my decision to have my own zoo grew greater and greater. After going on a number of expeditions to some countries to bring back animals for other zoos I felt it was the time to have my own. But I did not want a simple zoo; my idea behind my zoo was to aid in the preservation of animal life. I wanted this to be the main function of my zoo. Like all altruistic ideas, it was going to cost money. The zoo needed every form of publicity. Television was one of the best mediums, so I tried to popularize my zoo by this means whenever possible. One of the first programmes was devoted to the primates of whom the zoo boasted a rather fine collection.
